

James Wilson Bound Over to Grand Jury By 'Squire Milligan

Murder Suspects Given Preliminary Hearing This Morning--Information Name Three as Rowles' Murderers

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION AT ONCE

James Wilson one of the men caught by Officers Sullivan and Middleton at Rockton, and who is thought to be one of the Rowles murderers, was given a preliminary hearing before Squire Milligan this morning and bound over for action by the grand jury.

Four tramps rounded up on the night of the murder are held as material witnesses.

The information filed with the justice this morning contains the names of James Wilson, James Allen, the man who is injured at the DuBois hospital, and William Denney, and charges them with murder in the first degree.

Allen's case will be heard just as soon as he can be moved to Clearfield, or is able to appear before a justice of the peace at DuBois. It is certain that he would be bound over for the grand jury, and that his case will be presented for an indictment at the same time that Wilson's is brought up. Both men will be tried during the week of February 28, which will be "murder week" in the court of quarter sessions.

At the hearing this morning Mike Brawley and Patrick Kelley, the two men who were held up in the kitchen at the time Rowles was killed, recognized Allen as one of the three men who entered the shanty by the back door and robbed them. The identification is not positive, but both men swear that Allen bears a marked resemblance to one of the three, all of whom were masked.

Evidence tending to show that Wilson was with Denney at the time of the murder was given by two of the tramps held as witnesses. These men swear that Wilson was with them at the brick yard immediately before the killing, that Denney appeared there, and that Wilson left with him just a few minutes before the evidence shows Rowles was murdered.

Wilson has not made a formal denial of his complicity in the affair, but at the hearing this morning cautioned the witnesses that their testimony was "serious," and asked them, especially Brawley and Kelley, to be certain of their grounds before making his identification positive. Wilson is apparently a man of some education, judging from his conversation. He will be represented by counsel appointed by the court when he again appears in answer to the formal charge which is expected will be made against him following the grand jury investigation.

PROPER PHYSICAL TRAINING SHOULD BE GIVEN GIRLS

Efficiency Standards Based on Understanding of How to Conserve Physical Powers

Gymnasium and Swimming Pool are Being Used to Correct Defects and Deformities Under Medical Supervision.

New York, Feb. 9.—(By United Press.)—Because the officials believe in "the ethical value of boy-and-girl comradeship in sports and athletics," the National Y. W. C. A. and the National Y. M. C. A. are considering a co-operative and competitive system of physical culture in which boys and girls will have an equal share. This was announced here by the National Y. W. C. A. today. The plan has not been definitely settled upon yet, but is being considered by representatives of both organizations.

"The girl who can paddle a canoe, win a tennis match, bowl, skate, play basketball or do a hundred and one other physical stunts, works harder, plays fairer and is more likely to her family, her friends, her employer and her community than her sister who is not acquainted with any of the all-year-around activities or recreation and sport life."

Promotion of physical education and recreation among American girls is the undertaking of Dr. Anna L. Brown, Secretary for Hygiene and Physical Education of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association, who made the foregoing statement to the United Press today. "Dr. Brown believes standards of efficiency for women should be based upon an understanding of how to conserve and develop physical powers."

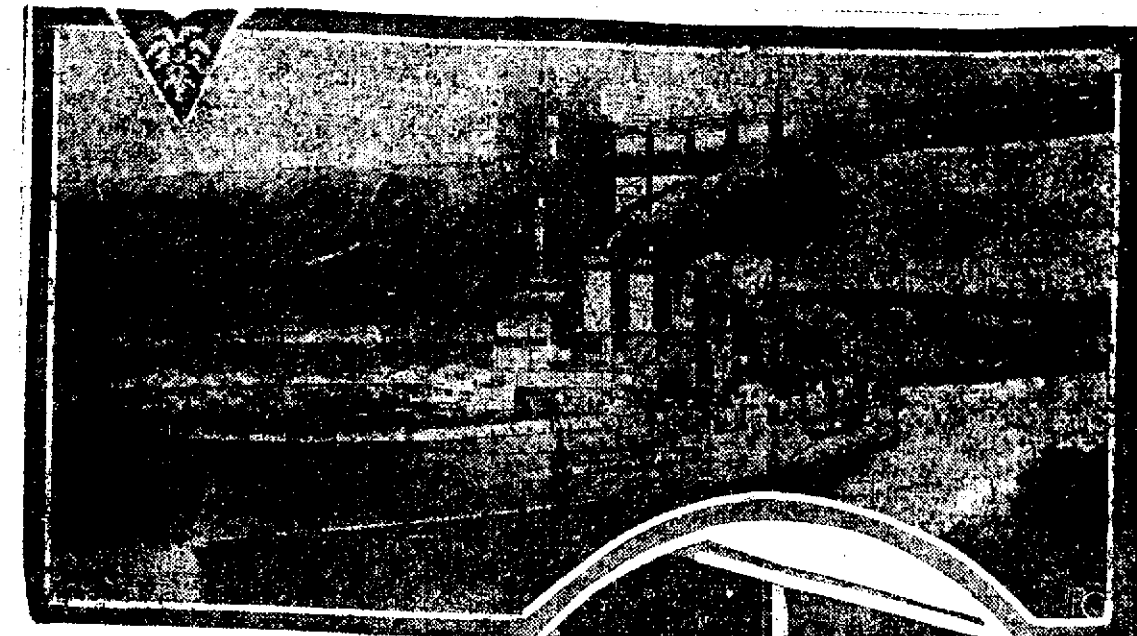

"My work," continued Dr. Brown, "is to popularize physical education as the foundation of health and happiness in the lives of girls and women. There are thousands of thousands of girls in my classes all over the country. The registration in 1914 showed an increase of 15,000. "Health and Safety is the slogan that is fast making the swimming pool a rival of the gymnasium in the favor of young women everywhere. Then there are the summer camps which are bringing girls the outdoor joys and privileges their more fortunate brothers have had for years. The military tactics, hikes and co-operative spirit enjoyed there are as essential to recreation, health and character-building during the summer months as are the games and athletics of the winter season."

"Widespread attention has been focused on the need of emphasizing good posture as fundamental to health and a great aid in promoting cheerfulness of spirit, capacity for work and powers of endurance."

"To conserve and develop physical powers the gymnasium and swimming pool is being used to correct defects and deformities under medical supervision, to develop weak muscles and strengthen other organs; to develop and perfect co-ordination, to reinforce health and make casual ailments unpopular; to provide recreation and create happiness in the use of the body in athletics and games of prowess and skill."

"All activities, social or physical, should be based upon scientific hygiene, in dress, diet, care of the person, exercise and rest. We have soon as able to outline girl and true types of physical training for women, adapted to age, occupation and living conditions; and underlying these, to develop a well defined code on the ethical use of physical powers and the responsibility of all women to give equal thought to their physical, intellectual and spiritual efficiency. Only under such well balanced conditions can they give their best efforts to the nation."

German Battleship May Have Taken Appam; Armed Guard on Liner

BATTLE CRUISER ROON IN KIEL CANAL.

The German battle cruiser, Roon, which at last accounts was imprisoned in the Kiel Canal, as the accompanying photograph shows, is believed by British officers aboard the liner Appam to have been chiefly instrumental in taking that vessel off the Canary Islands. How the Roon got out of the canal is not known, but there is a suspicion she has a rendezvous on the African coast.

The lower picture shows the armed German guard which is stationed at each gangway of the Appam to hold on board the British soldiers who might try to escape and to keep outsiders from reaching the vessel.

FORMER FOOTBALL STAR IS HELD FOR MURDER

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 9. (By United Press.)—John Edward Teiper, young business man, college graduate and former football star, must stand trial on the charge of murder in the first degree. An indictment charging him with killing his mother Agnes M. Teiper, on January 30th was returned before Justice Marcus in supreme court today. Teiper was immediately arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty.

Buffalo, Feb. 9. (By United Press.)—Attorney O'Malley asked the court to exercise its right to allow bail. This was promptly denied by the court. O'Malley said the time of the trial would almost entirely depend upon the condition of Grace Teiper now at the hospital suffering from a fractured skull. District Attorney Dudley said the trial will probably be held in April. Charles H. Teiper today reaffirmed his conviction that his brother John would be cleared of the murder charge.

LAST QUARANTINE IN THE BOROUGH IS LIFTED TODAY

Health Officer Commended For Efficient Work By State Board of Health

Many Citizens Co-operate With the Board of Health in Keeping Town in Splendid Sanitary Condition.

Health Officer O. B. McCullough reports that he, today, is lifting the quarantine from the last case of contagious disease in the borough of Clearfield. There is no other town in the state of Pennsylvania, the size of Clearfield that is in as good health condition and that has as few contagious diseases. About Clearfield there are several towns which at the present time are having epidemics of typhoid fever, diphtheria, measles or some other contagious disease but the health officers of our borough are taking special care not to permit any of these to reach Clearfield.

Clearfield has been especially fortunate this year in the amount of sickness which has come here. The grip epidemic which reached practically every town and city in this section of the country, has been entirely cleared away with here, claiming only a very small toll considering the number of people who died from that disease in other sections.

Last year during January and February, there was a serious epidemic of scarlet fever during which several people died. This year no such epidemic has visited the town. The health officers should be commended by our citizens, as they have been by the state board of health, for the efficient manner in which they have tended to the few contagious diseases and having control of the situation as to prevent the spread of the diseases and thereby protecting death and suffering and expense.

There are many towns and cities in Pennsylvania which are still suffering from the grip epidemic. It is hoped that the health officers of these towns will be able to prevent the spread of the disease to Clearfield. An effort is being made to prevent the spread of the disease to Clearfield by the health officers of this town. COAL OPERATORS REFUSE TO GRANT MINER'S DEMANDS

Declare They Are Not Sharing In Wave of Prosperity Which is Sweeping Country

Operators Offered to Renew the Wage Scale Which is Now Used—Miners Will Formally Reject Operator's Offer.

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 8.—Operators from the Central Competitive Bituminous coal fields, embracing Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, told the mine workers in joint wage conference here today that the mine owners are not sharing in the wave of prosperity now prevailing, and for that reason they could not see their way clear to grant the increase in wages asked by the miners. They refused to accede to the other demands of the United Mine Workers of America.

Instead of making any concessions whatever, the operators offered to renew the wage scale now in effect in the four states when they expired on March 31st.

There was general discussion among the miners and operators on present business conditions. John P. White, president of the International United Mine Workers, presented the demands of the miners.

The offer of the mine owners to renew the present wage agreement will be formally rejected by the miners and the demands made by the miners will be taken up by the miners' union.

The miners' union will be holding a meeting at Clearfield, Pa., Feb. 9, to discuss the situation. The miners' union will be holding a meeting at Clearfield, Pa., Feb. 9, to discuss the situation.

MAGNATES BELIEVE BASEBALL BATTLE WITH FEDS ENDED

Organized Baseball Comes Out of the Fight Bigger and Stronger Than Ever

Annual Schedule Meeting Was Held This Afternoon--Fortieth Annual National League Will be Held Tomorrow at Philadelphia.

New York, Feb. 9.—(By United Press.)—After pecking around the door from force of habit to see whether any Federal League satellite were camping upon their trail, the National League magnates suddenly remembered the Treaty of Cincinnati and sat down to their adjourned December meeting here today, in peace and at it.

It can not be said, however, that "peace is in the form of a dove descended upon them." 'Twas no such benevolent bird as that. It may have been a blue jay, possibly a robin, but no dove. That Federal League federal anti-trust suit is still pending in Chicago, you know and, while President Tener and his Magnates were all-fired glad to sit down in any kind of peace today, it being the first peaceful meeting the League has known in two years, still that blatted anti-trust thing was sort of a rift in the blue, or split in the hat, or whatever you want to call it that will be most appropriate.

The National magnates are pretty well satisfied today, though. They feel that the big battle is over and that Old General O. R. has withstood the onslaught of the outlaws nobly and victoriously; and that little now remains to be done but the shouting and the putting into practice of that ancient Jacksonian utterance: "to the victors belong the spoils." The spoils in this instance consist of a levy of Fed players to be traded in or out or however the magnates see fit; and it's a pretty safe bet that the magnates won't see fit to trade for returned wanderers on any too advantageous a bunch of terms.

Gen. O. R. has been pecked at and annoyed every once in a while by bothersome outlaw organizations of one sort and another, but never since the American League invented and glued itself to the National with its dissoluble adhesive has any pang of outlaws given the General a run for his money. Rivers of ink were the merest nothings to the Fed and it must be confessed that the General and his troops have flourished around in the Fed's current for a while, it may be said, but that was proved when these same Magnates meeting here today, basted their enemy right in the middle last December and sent him to Cincinnati to talk peace.

It's all over now though and Organized Base Ball believe it has come out of the battle bigger, stronger and better in every way than the Fed's expected war the rising sun over a horizon of peace.

The annual schedule meeting of the National League will be held here today, about and tomorrow night at the Waldorf-Astoria, the 40th annual National League banquet will be spread.

ARGUMENT COURT POSSIBLE

On account of the fact that the National League will be holding its annual meeting here today and tomorrow night at the Waldorf-Astoria, the 40th annual National League banquet will be spread.

Criminal court closed today with the disposal of the last of the cases which were on the calendar for the February session. Sentence was imposed in but seven cases, as follows:

Mike Doren, horse stealing. Sentenced to pay all costs and expenses and released under suspended sentence.

John Maney, who terrorized a number of people in the N. Y. C. yards 6 months ago, was fined $25 and costs, and released on parole.

Charles Condit, charged with aggravated assault and battery, given an indeterminate sentence of from one year to 18 months in the Western pen.

J. M. McSpock on two charges of larceny, was sentenced in the first case to not less than one year or more than 18 months. Sentence was suspended in the second case on the understanding that he is not to return to Clearfield county.

Robert Coulter, charged with violation of the liquor law, was released on parole. Lawrence Lewis, on the charge, was given ten days.

William Ward, charged with drunkenness, was sent to the Western pen for one year.

Sentence will be passed later in the week in several other cases where the defendants have entered pleas of guilty.

REV. KETCHAM PREACHES ANOTHER INSPIRING SERMON

Services Growing in Attendance and Interest--Several Conversions

The evangelistic services in the United Brethren church are progressing nicely and the attendance is increasing. The service last evening was very interesting and inspiring in every detail, opening with a song and a prayer, and closing with a song and a prayer. The service was held at 7:30. Come and bring your friends.

After the song service Rev. Ketcham preached an excellent sermon on "Time vs. Eternity," during which he said we should govern our decisions on all questions which confront us as to how it will affect our eternal life and not our present life, and above all we should look to the effect on our eternal life in regard to our souls salvation.

There were a number of conversions last night which is encouraging to the pastor and all concerned. The evening there will be special music and Rev. Ketcham will again preach. Service starts at 7:30. Come and bring your friends.

THE ISSUE

The rather vague statements from Washington as to the nature of the latest German offer in the Lusitania case and the attitude of the administration regarding it should not obscure an issue too plain to be misunderstood. The American demands upon the German government have been made in the name, not merely of law, but of justice and humanity. This government has declared itself as a champion of neutral rights. It has asserted that such acts as the sinking of merchantmen with non-combatants on board are injuries without measure, for which no ordinary form of reparation is possible. It has repudiated the idea that the obligation to protect human life could be denied, even though there were an attempt to escape. Yet although a year has elapsed since it first denounced the whole submarine policy of Germany, the only satisfaction it has gained is a grudging assurance that "liners" would not be attacked upon a condition it had explicitly refused to allow. Meanwhile Germany and her ally, Austria, have gone on with their campaigns of frightfulness, bandying words and raising irrelevant questions, haggling over terms of disavowal and debating technicalities intended to confuse both law and morals.

To accept in these circumstances any form of apology which does not meet the issue squarely, which fails to admit any violation of law or humanity and contents itself with expressions of regret for the loss of American lives, would be a humiliation which the American people, as soon as its full meaning was brought home to them, would never forget or forgive. It would mean that the administration cared more for peace than for honor. It would mean that all its brave words were stage thunder. It would mean that "intolerable injuries" had been condoned and that "the sacred principles of justice and humanity" had been abandoned and betrayed. The very suggestion is so amazing, so horrifying, that every patriotic citizen must hope that the "disavowal" the administration is prepared to accept is much broader in its scope than the reports indicate.—Public Ledger.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

Corfu, whose occupation by the Italians and Serbians recently brought forth a protest from Greece, is one of the parts of the lock that secures the Adriatic Sea at its narrow neck from the Ionian Sea and the open waters of the Mediterranean, begins a sketch on war geography issue today by the National Geographic Society. "Every Power and alliance of Powers, which have sought mastery of Adriatic waters, from the Delian League in the fifth century before Christ to the Entente Allies in the twentieth century after Christ, have warred for possession of Corfu. Corfu, then, in the role of stern center in the clash of Southeastern Europe's rivalries, is but experiencing another of the countless repetitions of its history.

Corfu lies like a watch-tower in the Ionian Sea before the narrowing entrance of the Strait of Otranto. To the north of it, a rugged finger of Albanian mountain-land reaches out into the strait, and, bending back, forms the splendid naval harbor of Avlona, one of the golden hopes of Austrian and Italian ambitions. To the northwest of Corfu, the long Italian heel cuts out into the waters of the lower sea. Together, these three elements dominate the Adriatic's outlet, and around them the strife of our civilization among a sown members might almost be said to have kindled.

There is great fertility and much picturesque beauty in the island, the most northerly of the Ionian Islands and one of the most important. It is 35 miles long, varying in breadth from three to twenty miles, and containing 275 square miles of area. It supports about 100,000 inhabitants. Abruptly mountainous, with highly fruitful valleys between Corfu follows the nature of the other Ionian Islands. Pantokrator, 3,000 feet high, rises the loftiest peak on the island. Its largely bald head is the only present-day memorial to many a prehistoric fable and myth.

"About the time Grecian states broke through the uncertain veil of tradition into the age of history and criticism, Corfu was settled by colonists from Corinth, the date being placed at 734 B. C. The colony grew rapidly in wealth, in maritime power, and into a confident spirit of independence. In the course of a dispute with the mother-city, it allied itself with Athens, much as our colonial forefathers allied themselves with England's great rival, France. Moreover, just as our alliance with France is held to have been a contributory cause to a far greater, an overshadowing conflict, so the alliance brought about by the Corinthians was one of the causes of the outbreak of the Peloponnesian War, the world-war of classic times.

"Next the Romans, becoming a jealous Power on the Adriatic, felt the need of the island that a desire to control this vitally important seaport always brings, and took Corfu under their protection in 229 B. C. Byzantium held it during the Middle Ages; and the Venetians, come to world-power as dictators of Adriatic waters, held Corfu, defending it by bribery, wonderful naval combat, and stubborn land fighting against the most bitter attacks of Turkey in 1797. At that time the island fell into the hands of the Ottoman, only to revert to a modern Greece, with its government in ancient Athens, more than 2,300 years after the end of the Delian League.

"The town of Corfu, on the east, well-built and comfortably circumstanced, is the principal community on the island. It has a population of about 29,000, and its people handle the whole of the island's trade. Olive oil, fish, wine, salt, honey, oranges, figs, and other fruits are the staples of its export. Its imports are manufactures of Central Europe, brought in from Brindisi, Athens and Fiume."

Were I Losing Money, Do You Think I'd Keep It Up?

Not on your life! I couldn't afford it. No other merchant in town could afford it. And the reason is simple: I am selling goods below cost, not because I want to, but because I'VE GOT IT TO DO to get rid of a fine lot of merchandise which isn't quite fine enough to start in business again with for the simple reason that it got wet when the firemen were putting out the fire over my store.

So believe me when I say that this sale is not to my liking. I'd rather sell goods at a profit any time, but when the price-wrecking business was forced on me I determined to make a good job of it. I'm doing it, to a Queen's taste, as anybody can tell you who came to the store this week or last.

You have one more chance to profit by this sale. On Saturday the balance of the stock goes at positively shameful prices. Look the ad over, and get here if you can.

ABE MIRKIN

Saturday's The Big Wind-Up Day

All those who took my tip and bought early at this sale are just a little bit more than pleased with themselves. They got what they rarely get nowadays---good merchandise at lower prices than they ever saw before, in or out of fire or other sales.

Of course you'll get tired of my giving you tips, but here is a final one for those who have attended the sale, as well as those who haven't:

Saturday Is The Final Day and Prices

will not be considered in Emptying Every Shelf in My Store. I've got to get out for the carpenters and decorators who start to work Monday.

Do you realize what that means? Well, read the rest of this announcement.

Weigh the prices. Compare them with the best you have ever seen. Then, instead of taking my word for it, make an extra effort to attend this final sales day and see for yourself what big values the goods themselves are.

WOMAN ARRAIGNED FOR SENDING BOX OF POISON CANDY

Mysterious Case Started When
Man Died After Eating
Candy Sent by Mail

Police Have Decided That Jealousy Was the Motive of Murder—Woman Held Denies Any Knowledge of the Crime.

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 9.—Numerous cities and towns throughout the country have gotten into print from time to time with "poisoned candy" cases, but Woonsocket has the distinction of furnishing the first "poisonous cream puff" case on record. So far the case has remained a deep mystery, but the police believe that a strong light will be shed upon it next Saturday, when Mrs. Hattie E. Oakley is arraigned in court for a preliminary examination in a charge of murder.

The mysterious case was its beginning two weeks ago today, in the death of Almand Vadeboncoeur, and the serious illness of Henry Cassavant, which followed their eating poisoned cream puffs, received through the mails.

The police story of the case indicates that Vadeboncoeur was an unexpected victim of the poisoned cream puffs. The box containing the puffs was sent to Cassavant and was addressed in a disguised handwriting which, the police stated at the time, resembled a woman's. Cassavant opened the box, gave one of the cream puffs to Vadeboncoeur and ate two himself. Vadeboncoeur died the same night, but Cassavant was saved because he had an overdose of poison and because of heroic efforts by a physician.

Mrs. Oakley was arrested on suspicion and later was held on a charge of murder. She denied having sent the package or knowing anything about it until after she had heard of the poisoning. She admitted having bought cream puffs at different times, but maintained she had not purchased recently. She also admitted having bought arsenic.

The police have conducted their investigation of the mystery on the theory that jealousy furnished the motive for the alleged murder. Mrs. Oakley told the police she had been acquainted with Cassavant for about seven years and for five years had seen him almost every day. She had been his companion on motorcycle rides and later when he bought an automobile rode with him in that.

The woman was shown the box in which the cream puffs were delivered to Cassavant and also the wrapper in which it went through the post office. She denied ever having seen either before and state most emphatically that nothing in the nature of a quarrel had taken place between Mr. Cassavant and herself.

Mrs. Oakley said she knew Cassavant had gone out one night to visit another young woman, because he told her the girl had invited him down and was going to give him a good supper. She said she did not object to his going and was not at all jealous. She admitted to the police that she had on two occasions bought arsenic at a local drug store, but in each case it was bought on the suggestion of Cassavant and the arsenic was for the purpose of mixing it with kerosene in order to rid the Cassavant house, in which she lived, of insect pests.

Dr. Harry S. Bernstein, state pathologist, reported that an analysis had disclosed at least two grains of arsenic in Vadeboncoeur's stomach. The physician also reported he had found a grain of arsenic in the paper wrapper of the box which had contained the cream puffs.

Vadeboncoeur died without informing his physician that he had eaten the cream puff, but Cassavant told his physician of the cream puff incident and the physician was the first to call the attention of the police to the case.

BIRTHS OUT OF WEDLOCK SHOW STEADY DECREASE

Harrisburg, Feb. 9.—Since the state began to register vital statistics a decade ago the Health Department regularly has made public the figures without every classifying legitimate and other births. Someone curious about the matter dug through the books and made the interesting discovery that Pennsylvania shows an almost unbroken decrease in the birth-rate of children born out of wedlock.

In 1906 the number of illegitimate children was 25 per 1,000 births; in 1914, the last available year, it was 19. The number of illegitimates ranges around 4,000 a year; even in 1910, when it rose to 4,792, the record, the rate was only 23 per 1,000, as the total births that year were large. Here's the record:

In 1906, number 4,128; rate per 1,000, 25; 1907, 3,509, rate per 1,000, 22; in 1908, 4,401, rate per 1,000, 23; in 1909, 4,625, rate per 1,000, 23; in 1910, 4,792, rate per 1,000, 23; in 1911, 4,595, rate per 1,000, 22; in 1912, 4,285, rate per 1,000, 20; in 1913, 4,488, rate per 1,000, 21; in 1914, 4,001, rate per 1,000, 19.

Until he opened his mail today Auditor General Powell had been a strong advocate of the new escheat law from purely impersonal and patriotic motives. It provides that unclaimed bank deposits and other moneys held by a corporation shall be paid into the state. Powell, with many others, has favored the law to bolster the inadequate revenues of state.

But today Powell got a letter from the First National Bank of Latrobe, enclosing a cashier's check payable to him for $5.93.

In the middle '90s Powell taught school at Latrobe. Then he went to Yale, and the Philippines with the "Fighting Tenth" and back to Yale. "I never recalled that Latrobe account till today," he said. This new escheat law's a dandy.

Men who have been coming to the State Board of Agriculture meetings for a generation found themselves in a strange land this week when they called on Secretary of Agriculture Patton. Until Patton's recent appointment, N. B. Critchfield has been secretary since before the new Capitol was occupied. Critchfield always used as his own office a big room intended for the secretary's reception room. One result was that he really had no "private office." Patton has switched things, with the result that the department's offices look like new territory.

KANSAS CITY PLANS BIG BOUTS

Kansas City, Feb.—The 10-round contest here tomorrow night between Charley White of Chicago and Harvey Thorpe, the local lightweight, is planned as the first of a series of big bouts that is expected to place Kansas City alongside Milwaukee, St. Paul and other middle Western cities that shine on the pugilistic map. For many years the fight promoters of this city have been handicapped by the lack of a large auditorium to which to pull off their shows. But now they have secured Convention Hall, with a seating capacity of 15,000, and the White-Thorpe setto will be the first event of its kind to be staged there. Other bouts in view by the local promoters will bring Young Ahearn and Tommy Gibbons and Jack Dillon and Jim Coffey.

James Wilson Bound Over to Grand Jury By 'Squire Milligan

Murder Suspects Given Preliminary Hearing This Morning--Information Name Three as Rowles' Murderers

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION AT ONCE

James Wilson one of the men caught by Officers Sullivan and Middleton at Rockton, and who is thought to be one of the Rowles murderers, was given a preliminary hearing before Squire Milligan this morning and bound over for action by the grand jury.

Four tramps rounded up on the night of the murder are held as material witnesses.

The information filed with the justice this morning contains the names of James Wilson, James Allen, the man who is injured at the DuBois hospital, and William Denney, and charges them with murder in the first degree.

Allen's case will be heard just as soon as he can be moved to Clearfield, or is able to appear before a justice of the peace at DuBois. It is certain that he would be bound over for the grand jury, and that his case will be presented for an indictment at the same time that Wilson's is brought up. Both men will be tried during the week of February 28, which will be "murder week" in the court of quarter sessions.

At the hearing this morning Mike Brawley and Patrick Kelley, the two men who were held up in the kitchen at the time Rowles was killed, recognized Allen as one of the three men who entered the shanty by the back door and robbed them. The identification is not positive, but both men swear that Allen bears a marked resemblance to one of the three, all of whom were masked.

Evidence tending to show that Wilson was with Denney at the time of the murder was given by two of the tramps held as witnesses. These men swear that Wilson was with them at the brick yard immediately before the killing, that Denney appeared there, and that Wilson left with him just a few minutes before the evidence shows Rowles was murdered.

Wilson has not made a formal denial of his complicity in the affair, but at the hearing this morning cautioned the witnesses that their testimony was "serious," and asked them, especially Brawley and Kelley, to be certain of their grounds before making his identification positive. Wilson is apparently a man of some education, judging from his conversation. He will be represented by counsel appointed by the court when he again appears in answer to the formal charge which is expected will be made against him following the grand jury investigation.

German Battleship May Have Taken Appam; Armed Guard on Liner

BATTLE CRUISER ROON IN KIEL CANAL.

The German battle cruiser, Roon, which at last accounts was imprisoned in the Kiel Canal, as the accompanying photograph shows, is believed by British officers aboard the liner Appam to have been chiefly instrumental in taking that vessel off the Canary Islands. How the Roon got out of the canal is not known, but there is a suspicion she has a rendezvous on the African coast.

The lower picture shows the armed German guard which is stationed at each gangway of the Appam to hold on board the British soldiers who might try to escape and to keep outsiders from reaching the vessel.

FORMER FOOTBALL STAR IS HELD FOR MURDER

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 9. (By United Press)—John Edward Teiper, young business man, college graduate and former football star, must stand trial on the charge of murder in the first degree. An indictment charging him with killing his mother Agnes M. Teiper, on January 30th was returned before Justice Marcus in supreme court today. Teiper was immediately arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty.

Buffalo, Feb. 9. (By United Press)—Attorney O'Malley asked the court to exercise its right to allow bail. This was promptly denied by the court. O'Malley said the time of the trial would almost entirely depend upon the condition of Grace Teiper now at the hospital suffering from a fractured skull. District Attorney Dudley said the trial will probably be held in April. Charles H. Teiper today reaffirmed his conviction that his brother John would be cleared of the murder charge.

LAST QUARANTINE IN THE BOROUGH IS LIFTED TODAY

Many Citizens Co-operate With the Board of Health in Keeping Town in Splendid Sanitary Condition.

Health Officer O. B. McCullough reports that he, today, is lifting the quarantine from the last case of contagious disease in the borough of Clearfield. There is no other town in the state of Pennsylvania, the size of Clearfield that is in as good health condition and that has as few contagious diseases. About Clearfield there are several towns which at the present time are having epidemics of typhoid fever, diphtheria, measles or some other contagious disease but the health officers of our borough are taking special care not to permit any of these to reach Clearfield.

Clearfield has been especially fortunate this year in the amount of sickness which has come here. The grip epidemic which reached practically every town and city in this section of the country, has been entirely cleared away with here, claiming only a very small toll considering the number of people who died from that disease in other sections.

Last year during January and February, there was a serious epidemic of scarlet fever during which several people died. This year no such epidemic has visited the town. The health officers should be commended by our citizens, as they have been by the state board of health, for the efficient manner in which they have tended to the few contagious diseases and having control of the situation as to prevent the spread of the diseases and thereby protecting death and suffering.

There are many towns and cities which are attempting to do what Clearfield has done, but they are not doing it as well as we are. We are proud of our record and we are proud of the health officers who have made it possible for us to be in as good health condition as we are.

COAL OPERATORS REFUSE TO GRANT MINER'S DEMANDS

Declare They Are Not Sharing In Wave of Prosperity Which Is Sweeping Country

Operators Offered to Renew the Wage Scale Which is Now Used—Miners Will Formally Reject Operator's Offer.

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 8. —Operators from the Central Competitive Bituminous coal fields, embracing Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, told the mine workers in joint wage conference here today that the mine owners are not sharing in the wave of prosperity now prevailing, and for that reason they could not see their way clear to grant the increase in wages asked by the miners. They refused to accede to the other demands of the United Mine Workers of America.

COAL OPERATORS REFUSE TO GRANT MINER'S DEMANDS

Operators Offered to Renew the Wage Scale Which is Now Used—Miners Will Formally Reject Operator's Offer.

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 8. —Operators from the Central Competitive Bituminous coal fields, embracing Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, told the mine workers in joint wage conference here today that the mine owners are not sharing in the wave of prosperity now prevailing, and for that reason they could not see their way clear to grant the increase in wages asked by the miners. They refused to accede to the other demands of the United Mine Workers of America.

Instead of making any concessions whatever, the operators offered to renew the wage scales now in effect in the four states when they expired on March 31st.

There was general discussion among the miners and operators on present business conditions. John P. White, president of the International United Mine Workers, presented the demands of the miners.

The offer of the mine owners to renew the present wage agreement will be formally rejected by the miners and the demands made by the miners will be taken up in a new conference which will probably be held in a few days.

MAGNATES BELIEVE BASEBALL BATTLE WITH FEDS ENDED

Organized Baseball Comes Out of the Fight Bigger and Stronger Than Ever

Annual Schedule Meeting Was Held This Afternoon--Fortieth Annual National League Will be Held Tomorrow at Philadelphia.

New York, Feb. 9. —(By United Press).—After peering around the door from force of habit to see whether any Federal League sutelites were camping upon their trail, the National League magnates suddenly remembered the Treaty of Cincinnati and sat down to their adjourned December meeting here today, in peace and at it.

It can not be said, however, that "peace is in the form of a dove descended upon them." 'Twas no such benevolent bird as that. It may have been a blue jay, possibly a robin, but no dove. That Fed League federal anti-trust suit is still pending in Chicago, you know and, while President Tener and his Magnates were all-fired glad to sit down in any kind of peace today, it being the first peaceful meeting the League has known in two years, still that blamed anti-trust thing was sort of a rift in the blue, or split in the hat, or whatever you want to call it that will be most appropriate.

The National magnates are pretty well satisfied today, though. They feel that the big battle is over and that Old General O. R. has withstood the onslaught of the outlaws nobly and victoriously; and that little now remains to be done but the shouting and the putting into practice of that ancient Jacksonian utterance: "to the victors belong the spoils." The spoils in this instance consist of a levy of Fed players to be traded in or out or however the magnates see fit; and it's a pretty safe bet that the magnates won't see fit to trade for returned wanderers on any too advantageous a bunch of terms.

Gen. O. R. has been pecked at and annoyed every once in a while by bothersome outlaw organizations of one sort and another, but never since the American League invented and glued itself to the National with its dissoluble adhesive has any pang of outlaws given the General a run for his money. Rivers of ink were the merest nothings to the Fed and it must be confessed that the General and his troops have flourished around in the Fed's current for a while, and then retired, it had. That was proved when these same Magnates meeting here today, basted their only reply in the middle of December and adjourned to Cincinnati to talk peace.

It's all over now though and Organized Base Ball believe it has come out of the battle bigger, stronger and better in every way than the Fed's expected with the rising sun over a horizon of victory.

The annual schedule meeting of the National League will be held here today, about and tomorrow night at the Waldorf-Astoria, the 40th annual National League banquet will be spread.

ARGUMENT COURT POSSIBLE

On account of the fact that the National League is now in a position to pay a large sum for the return of a player, it is possible that an argument court will be held.

Criminal court closed today with the disposal of the last of the cases which were on the calendar for the February session. Sentence was imposed in but seven cases, as follows:

Mike Doren, horse stealing. Sentenced to pay all costs and expenses and released under suspended sentence.

John Maney, who terrorized a number of people in the N. Y. C. yards a month ago, was fined $25 and costs, and released on parole.

Charles Condit, charged with aggravated assault and battery, given an indeterminate sentence of from one year to 18 months in the Western pen.

J. M. McSpock on two charges of larceny, was sentenced in the first case to not less than one year or more than 18 months. Sentence was suspended in the second case on the understanding that he is not to return to Clearfield county.

Robert Coulter, charged with violation of the liquor law, was released on parole. Lawrence Lewis, on the charge, was given ten days.

William Ward, charged with drunkenness, was sent to the Western pen for one year.

Sentence will be passed later in the week in several other cases where the defendants have entered pleas of guilty.

REV. KETCHAM PREACHES ANOTHER INSPIRING SERMON

Services Growing in Attendance and Interest--Several Conversions

The evangelistic services in the United Brethren church are progressing nicely and the attendance is increasing. The service last evening was very interesting and inspiring in every detail, opening with a song and a prayer, and closing with a song and a prayer. The service was held at 7:30 p.m. and was well attended.

After the song service Rev. Ketcham preached an excellent sermon on "Time vs. Eternity," during which he said we should govern our decisions on all questions which confront us on how it will affect our eternal life and not our present life, and above all we should look to the effect on our eternal life in regard to our souls salvation.

There were a number of conversions last night which is encouraging to the pastor and all concerned. The evening there will be special music and Rev. Ketcham will again preach. Service starts at 7:30. Come and bring your friends.

HELMUTH REPLES SEPARATE PEACE OFFER BY GERMANY

London, Feb. 9. (By United Press).—Helmuth von Moltke, German Minister of War, today rejected the separate peace offer made by Germany to the Allies. He said that the offer was not a genuine peace offer, but a trick to gain time for the German army to reorganize.

The Kaiser, the report said, urged the immediate rejection of the offer. He said that the German army was still strong and that the Allies were not ready to accept the offer.

The report said that the German government was still in a position to fight and that the Allies were not ready to accept the offer.

THE ISSUE

The rather vague statements from Washington as to the nature of the latest German offer in the Lusitania case and the attitude of the administration regarding it should not obscure an issue too plain to be misunderstood. The American demands upon the German government have been made in the name, not merely of law, but of justice and humanity. This government has declared itself as a champion of neutral rights. It has asserted that such acts as the sinking of merchantmen with non-combatants on board are injuries without measure, for which no ordinary form of reparation is possible. It has repudiated the idea that the obligation to protect human life could be denied, even though there were an attempt to escape. Yet although a year has elapsed since it first denounced the whole submarine policy of Germany, the only satisfaction it has gained is a grudging assurance that "liners" would not be attacked upon a condition it had explicitly refused to allow. Meanwhile Germany and her ally, Austria, have gone on with their campaigns of frightfulness, bandying words and raising irrelevant questions, haggling over terms of disavowal and debating technicalities intended to confuse both law and morals.

To accept in these circumstances any form of apology which does not meet the issue squarely, which fails to admit any violation of law or humanity and contents itself with expressions of regret for the loss of American lives, would be a humiliation which the American people, as soon as its full meaning was brought home to them, would never forget or forgive. It would mean that the administration cared more for peace than for honor. It would mean that all its brave words were stage thunder. It would mean that "intolerable injuries" had been condoned and that "the sacred principles of justice and humanity" had been abandoned and betrayed. The very suggestion is so amazing, so horrifying, that every patriotic citizen must hope that the "disavowal" the administration is prepared to accept is much broader in its scope than the reports indicate.—Public Ledger.

Corfu, whose occupation by the Italians and Serbians recently brought forth a protest from Greece, is one of the parts of the lock that secures the Adriatic Sea at its narrow neck from the Ionian Sea and the open waters of the Mediterranean, begins a sketch on war geography issue today by the National Geographic Society. "Every Power and alliance of Powers, which have sought mastery of Adriatic waters, from the Delian League in the fifth century before Christ to the Entente Allies in the twentieth century after Christ, have warred for possession of Corfu. Corfu, then, in the role of stern center in the clash of Southeastern Europe's rivalries, is but experiencing another of the countless repetitions of its history.

Corfu lies like a watch-tower in the Ionian Sea before the narrowing entrance of the Strait of Otranto. To the north of it, a rugged finger of Albanian mountain-land reaches out into the strait, and, bending back, forms the splendid naval harbor of Avlona, one of the golden hopes of Austrian and Italian ambitions. To the northwest of Corfu, the long Italian heel cuts out into the waters of the lower sea. Together, these three elements dominate the Adriatic's outlet, and around them the strife of our civilization among a sown members might almost be said to have kindled.

There is great fertility and much picturesque beauty in the island, the most northerly of the Ionian Islands and one of the most important. It is 35 miles long, varying in breadth from three to twenty miles, and containing 275 square miles of area. It supports about 100,000 inhabitants. Abruptly mountainous, with highly fruitful valleys between Corfu follows the nature of the other Ionian Islands. Pantokrator, 3,000 feet high, rises the loftiest peak on the island. Its largely bald head is the only present-day memorial to many a prehistoric fable and myth.

"About the time Grecian states broke through the uncertain veil of tradition into the age of history and criticism, Corfu was settled by colonists from Corinth, the date being placed at 734 B. C. The colony grew rapidly in wealth, in maritime power, and into a confident spirit of independence. In the course of a dispute with the mother-city, it allied itself with Athens, much as our colonial forefathers allied themselves with England's great rival, France. Moreover, just as our alliance with France is held to have been a contributory cause to a far greater, an overshadowing conflict, so the alliance brought about by the Corinthians was one of the causes of the outbreak of the Peloponnesian War, the world-war of classic times.

"Next the Romans, becoming a jealous Power on the Adriatic, felt the need of the island that a desire to control this vitally important seaport always brings, and took Corfu under their protection in 229 B. C. Byzantium held it during the Middle Ages; and the Venetians, come to world-power as dictators of Adriatic waters, held Corfu, defending it by bribery, wonderful naval combat, and stubborn land fighting against the most bitter attacks of Turkey in 1797. At that time the island fell into the hands of the Ottoman, only to revert to a modern Greece, with its government in ancient Athens, more than 2,300 years after the end of the Delian League.

"The town of Corfu, on the east, well-built and comfortably circumstanced, is the principal community on the island. It has a population of about 29,000, and its people handle the whole of the island's trade. Olive oil, fish, wine, salt, honey, oranges, figs, and other fruits are the staples of its export. Its imports are manufactures of Central Europe, brought in from Brindisi, Athens and Fiume."

POLLACK'S BARGAIN STORE
306 Market Street Clearfield, Pa.

Were I Losing Money, Do You Think I'd Keep It Up?

Not on your life! I couldn't afford it. No other merchant in town could afford it. And the reason is simple: I am selling goods below cost, not because I want to, but because I'VE GOT IT TO DO to get rid of a fine lot of merchandise which isn't quite fine enough to start in business again with for the simple reason that it got wet when the firemen were putting out the fire over my store.

So believe me when I say that this sale is not to my liking. I'd rather sell goods at a profit any time, but when the price-wrecking business was forced on me I determined to make a good job of it. I'm doing it, to a Queen's taste, as anybody can tell you who came to the store this week or last.

You have one more chance to profit by this sale. On Saturday the balance of the stock goes at positively shameful prices. Look the ad over, and get here if you can.

Saturday's The Big Wind-Up Day

All those who took my tip and bought early at this sale are just a little bit more than pleased with themselves. They got what they rarely get nowadays---good merchandise at lower prices than they ever saw before, in or out of fire or other sales.

Of course you'll get tired of my giving you tips, but here is a final one for those who have attended the sale, as well as those who haven't:

Saturday Is The Final Day and Prices

will not be considered in Emptying Every Shelf in My Store. I've got to get out for the carpenters and decorators who start to work Monday.

Do you realize what that means? Well, read the rest of this announcement.

Weigh the prices. Compare them with the best you have ever seen. Then, instead of taking my word for it, make an extra effort to attend this final sales day and see for yourself what big values the goods themselves are.

WOMAN ARRAIGNED FOR SENDING BOX OF POISON CANDY

Mysterious Case Started When
Man Died After Eating
Candy Sent by Mail

Police Have Decided That Jealousy
Was the Motive of Murder—Woman
Held Denies Any Knowledge of the Crime.

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 9.—Numerous cities and towns throughout the country have gotten into print from time to time with "poisoned candy" cases, but Woonsocket has the distinction of furnishing the first "poisonous cream puff" case on record. So far the case has remained a deep mystery, but the police believe that a strong light will be shed upon it next Saturday, when Mrs. Hattie E. Oakley is arraigned in court for a preliminary examination in a charge of murder.

The mysterious case was its beginning two weeks ago today, in the death of Almand Vadeboncoeur, and the serious illness of Henry Cassavant, which followed their eating poisoned cream puffs, received through the mails.

The police story of the case indicates that Vadeboncoeur was an unexpected victim of the poisoned cream puffs. The box containing the puffs was sent to Cassavant and was addressed in a disguised handwriting which, the police stated at the time, resembled a woman's. Cassavant opened the box, gave one of the cream puffs to Vadeboncoeur and ate two himself. Vadeboncoeur died the same night, but Cassavant was saved because he had an overdose of poison and because of heroic efforts by a physician.

Mrs. Oakley was arrested on suspicion and later was held on a charge of murder. She denied having sent the package or knowing anything about it until after she had heard of the poisoning. She admitted having bought cream puffs at different times, but maintained she had not purchased recently. She also admitted having bought arsenic.

The police have conducted their investigation of the mystery on the theory that jealousy furnished the motive for the alleged murder. Mrs. Oakley told the police she had been acquainted with Cassavant for about seven years and for five years had seen him almost every day. She had been his companion on motorcycle rides and later when he bought an automobile rode with him in that.

The woman was shown the box in which the cream puffs were delivered to Cassavant and also the wrapper in which it went through the post office. She denied ever having seen either before and state most emphatically that nothing in the nature of a quarrel had taken place between Mr. Cassavant and herself.

Mrs. Oakley said she knew Cassavant had gone out one night to visit another young woman, because he told her, the girl had invited him down and was going to give him a good supper. She said she did not object to his going and was not at all jealous. She admitted to the police that she had on two occasions bought arsenic at a local drug store, but in each case it was bought on the suggestion of Cassavant and the arsenic was for the purpose of mixing it with kerosene in order to rid the Cassavant house, in which she lived, of insect pests.

Dr. Harry S. Bernstein, state pathologist, reported that an analysis had disclosed at least two grains of arsenic in Vadeboncoeur's stomach. The physician also reported he had found a grain of arsenic in the paper wrapper of the box which had contained the cream puffs.

Vadeboncoeur died without informing his physician that he had eaten the cream puff, but Cassavant told his physician of the cream puff incident and the physician was the first to call the attention of the police to the case.

BIRTHS OUT OF WEDLOCK SHOW STEADY DECREASE

Auditor Powell Gets His Own Money Back—Little Stories From Capitol Hill.

Harrisburg, Feb. 9.—Since the state began to register vital statistics a decade ago the Health Department regularly has made public the figures without every classifying legitimate and other births. Someone curious about the matter dug through the books and made the interesting discovery that Pennsylvania shows an almost unbroken decrease in the birth-rate of children born out of wedlock. Here's the record:

In 1906 the number of illegitimate children was 25 per 1,000 births; in 1914, the last available year, it was 19. The number of illegitimates ranges around 4,000 a year; even in 1910, when it rose to 4,792, the record, the rate was only 23 per 1,000, as the total births that year were large. Here's the record:

In 1906, number 4,128; rate per 1,000, 25; 1907, 3,509, rate per 1,000, 22; in 1908, 4,401, rate per 1,000, 23; in 1909, 4,625, rate per 1,000, 23; in 1910, 4,792, rate per 1,000, 23; in 1911, 4,595, rate per 1,000, 22; in 1912, 4,285, rate per 1,000, 20; in 1913, 4,488, rate per 1,000, 21; in 1914, 4,001, rate per 1,000, 19.

Until he opened his mail today Auditor General Powell had been a strong advocate of the new escheat law from purely impersonal and patriotic motives. It provides that unclaimed bank deposits and other moneys held by a corporation shall be paid into the state. Powell, with many others, has favored the law to bolster the inadequate revenues of state.

But today Powell got a letter from the First National Bank of Latrobe, enclosing a cashier's check payable to him for $5.93.

In the middle '90s Powell taught school at Latrobe. Then he went to Yale, and the Philippines with the "Fighting Tenth" and back to Yale. "I never recalled that Latrobe account till today," he said. This new escheat law's a dandy.

Men who have been coming to the State Board of Agriculture meetings for a generation found themselves in a strange land this week when they called on Secretary of Agriculture Patton. Until Patton's recent appointment, N. B. Critchfield has been secretary since before the new Capitol was occupied. Critchfield always used as his own office a big room intended for the secretary's reception room. One result was that he really had no "private office." Patton has switched things, with the result that the department's offices look like new territory.

The commander-in-chief of the National Guard and the major general commanding the division are almost as far apart, religiously, as Christians may get. Governor Brumbaugh is a Dunkard preacher. Major General Charles M. Clement is senior warden of St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal Church, Sunbury, and is secretary of the Diocese of Harrisburg.

KANSAS CITY PLANS BIG BOUTS

Kansas City, Feb.—The 10-round contest here tomorrow night between Charley White of Chicago and Harvey Thorpe, the local lightweight, is planned as the first of a series of big bouts that is expected to place Kansas City alongside Milwaukee, St. Paul and other middle Western cities that shine on the pugilistic map. For many years the fight promoters of this city have been handicapped by the lack of a large auditorium to which to pull off their shows. But now they have secured Convention Hall, with a seating capacity of 15,000, and the White-Thorpe setto will be the first event of its kind to be staged there. Other bouts in view by the local promoters will bring Young Ahearn and Tommy Gibbons and Jack Dillon and Jim Coffey.

A patent has been granted for a glass sided box to be placed in a wall to make an incandescent lamp illuminate two or more rooms.
